In a small West Virginia town, a motocross racer seeks revenge against his brother's death from a drug overdose the previous summer. He finds out that his brother had died in the same manner after meeting up with a group of young adults traveling in an SUV. This motocross racer finds them and takes down one of the young women's cellphones, calling someone to "clean up" the mess. A pair of clean-cut FBI agents arrive in town to investigate several cannibalistic homicides in the area, which are assumed to be caused by some sort of large animal. One of them goes around town asking questions about what has been happening while the other is confronted by Mrs. Greenway, who claims that her son Joshua is missing along with three others, Megan, Jessie and Doug. Later, the two FBI agents find out that Megan, Joshua and Jessie had been on their way to a chiropractor convention in Washington D.C. but had taken a detour on their way there to visit Joshua's grave; while Doug and another woman named "Beth" had been taking a road trip together. They also find out that the local sheriff, Foster, along with his deputy Duffy, have discovered the remains of Megan and Josh and buried them in their back yard before covering it up and telling everyone that they were never found. The FBI agents contact Doug's father who works at a Federal office so he can get them info on what they've found out about the Greenway family. Meanwhile the Sheriff and his deputy come across Beth's mangled corpse in a shallow grave, which they also decide to cover up by burying it. The next morning, the motocross racer stalks and kills Doug and his father with a sickle after finding out what they've found out about him and is then attacked by Deputy Duffy who is then killed by the racer who takes his gun. Meanwhile Megan's mother is pleading with Mrs. Greenway to help find her daughter and bring her home safe and sound and not leave her behind like they did with Josh. They both go around town looking for clues as to where they might have gone off to, but before they can reach Josh's grave, the racer attacks them; killing Mrs. Greenway before leaving. He then stalks Megan and her friends again and finds them at a convenience store where they make an escape to the woods near their SUV which is parked nearby. The security cameras catch the racer's reflection as he watches them through the window; revealing him to be "Joshua". When he gets frustrated that he can't find them, he goes into a fury and destroys everything in his path before leaving. The FBI agents show up to investigate what happened but find nothing except for a bloody boot print which leads them to believe that whatever did this was wearing boots instead of claws or hands. When they question Mrs.
